

Inspection, testing and tagging electrical equipment

Inspection, Testing and Tagging of portable in service electrical equipment

The inspection, testing and tagging of portable in service electrical equipment to comply with the tests required in Australian Standard AS/NZS 3760 does not constitute electrical work in regard to the Electrical Workers and Contractors Act provided that the testing does not include any dismantling, assembling or repairs of the equipment being tested.

However Workplace Health and Safety legislation requires a person to be a competent person to carry out “Inspection, Testing & Tagging” of portable in service electrical equipment.
